You don't have to be the same as everyone else, paying attention to the words people say and using it to hide the real you to "Fit it ". Every single person is different in their own ways but our differences is what makes unique and beautiful. Some people might not like the way you laugh or how you talk but be yourself because being an original is better than being a copy. Dr Seuss quotes " why fit in when you were born to stand out".

Different Cultures

Being a certain culture does not determine if we are smart or not, either being an Asian, Indian or a Pacific islander. Our cultures are all amazing and we need to express them in our own ways, either teaching them your language or cultural dances because your culture is your own brand.

People with disabilities should not be treated differently, we are all humans. Having a disability makes you unique and different. Remember your ability is more stronger the your dis - ability and embrace the fact that you are one in a million.
